1 There is not a clear picture of the transportation routes to be used. Specifically how the waste is to be transported. How is the public to make a decision on the impacts of the project when the transportation impacts can only be guessed?

2 In addition there inadequate evaluation of uncertainties. The DEIS is full of imprecise language such as "very unlikely", "sufficient quantity", "probably would" etc. How are we to make a sound decision on a project of such enormous scope as Yucca Mountain when we can't be certain of the science contained within.
