Dear Ms. Hanlon,

I would like to provide a few comments about the Yucca Mountain Project. It is time for the federal government to accept the responsibility of disposal of spent nuclear fuel and high level nuclear waste. Past administrations have done nothing but waffle on the issue. It is time to put politics aside and get on with the project.

Because of politics, the congressional delegation from Nevada is opposed. But deep down, I bet they feel the way I do in that there is no better place than Yucca Mountain. The site has been studied to death and there is nothing technically wrong. The anti-nukes keep trying to throw up roadblocks just to delay the project, but this is just another way they hope to remove nuclear power from our electrical generation mix.

It is better to store spent nuclear at one site rather than 70 sites. Please encourage Secretary Abraham to recommend to the President that the country needs to go forward with the final construction and licensing of the Yucca Mountain Site.

Thank you,

John Connelly
